HyperTerminal 7 is .Poorly ligating intestinal anastomoses. Fifty patients who underwent colonic resection were given a single dose of antibiotic 30 minutes prior to anastomosis. Only 12% of patients had normal wound healing. Loose anastomoses were associated with blood loss more than 500 ml greater than that associated with tight anastomoses. Most patients with a loose anastomosis received a postoperative course of antibiotics. The patients with anastomoses leaking had a longer postoperative hospital stay than those with normal healing. The cost of treating a leak with antibiotics was more than double that of managing a potentially leaky anastomosis with nonoperative measures.Q: Change CSS class based on new viewport view using CSS media queries I would like to change a CSS class depending on the height of the window which the page is being viewed in. Here's what I have so far: CSS @media only screen and (max-width: 699px) { .single_column { width: 100%; clear: both; } .my_css { margin-top: 30px; margin-bottom: 30px; } @media only screen and (max-width: 396px) { .my_css { margin-bottom: 0; } } } HTML Test Title This is some text that should be in the center of this page. This is some text that should be in the center of this page. However, the only way I can see to do this is by adding conditional statements in the CSS file. I would like to know if there is a way I can use media queries to do this for me. Is this possible? A: You can use a single
